United States Senator E. J. Bur-
kett's Fine Oratorical Effort.

ROSS CRANE A BIG FAVORITE

Dr. Samuel Phelps Leland in His Noted
Lecture—The People Still Enthusiastic—The Programs Are Highly Interesting—Today's Meetings.

The people who attended the lecture of Dr. Samuel Phelps Leland at the Tabernacle, Saturday, got their money's worth in quantity at least, as his story about "Ourselves as Others See Us," would make two volumes. His lecture discussion of astronomical topics was of a very profound character, but he aroused the people from their deep thinking to a realizing sense of the fact that they were still dwelling among the mortals of the earth, by a series of violent declamations against the United States Senate and the old bachelors who inhabit this mundane sphere, and intimated that it would be a good plan to wipe the latter off the face of the earth on general principles. He gave the bachelor girls a jar, and before he had finished his audience had returned to terra firma from its flight among the planets and stars, satisfied that things were possibly not exactly as they should be, but some of them wondered if the venerable doctor of law had given them the proper solution of the problem.

Evening Program.

The Saturday night program had two attractions that drew the people, and the popular hit that Ross Crane made the evening previous put him up as a top-notch, and everybody said "Be sure and hear him." His entertainment last night was fine, his play modeling being very pleasing. He is certainly the best in his line ever in the State. His last number, the sketch of Longfellow's "The Bridge," and the recitation of the poem while making the picture, closing with the piano accompaniment of the music of the song, was sublime.

Before introducing Senator Burkett, Dr. Strouse manifested a desire that Ross Crane and Dr. Leland be invited to come next year, and when Mr. Crane's name was mentioned there was a general assent of approval from the entire audience, and a similar demonstration for Dr. Leland.

On being presented to the audience Senator Burkett commenced in a very pleasant manner, and his fine appearance won the good opinion of his hearers at once. He is a polished speaker, and in his subject, "The New Woman and the Young Man," he drew the closest attention of all, and proved all the good things regarding him that have been said of him to be true. He has a keen sense of humor, which flows from his lips with apparently little effort.

J. R. Feaster of Rochelle, who is engaged in the fishing business at Rocky Curve, was in the city yesterday and made The Sun an agreeable call. Mr. Feaster states that on Monday some miscreant cut one of his nets, the original cost of which was $110, into shreds, completely ruining same. He has no idea who the guilty party is, but declares if he could apprehend him there would be "something doing."

Deputy Sheriff Elias Osteen of Wilkesford, one of the most popular citizens of his section and a representative from his district of the County Democratic Executive Committee, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Osteen states that politics have not begun yet to "get warm" in his section, but he has the kindlings, and when he is directed to start the fire by his committee there will be simmering in a short time.
